

*The Medical Bulletin

In Poison

Will snakes leave teeth after biting?

Few non-poisonous snakes like python and very rarely vipers could leave their teeth while biting which may result in local sepsis. Banking on this rare occurrence, the snake charmers exploit the patients. In India, the treatment of venomous snake bite is marred by several limitations, especially at the rural areas.

Dr. Sangram Biradar